END OF A PROTRACTED LEGISLATIVE STRUGGLE IN THE HOUSE.

Wilson Continues His Opposition to the Bill, and W. L. Scott Makes a Stir-ring Speech in Its Pavor-The Final Scene Graphically Reported by a Congressman from Missouri-Gov. Hill Re-ceives Democratic Congressmen in the Room of the Committee on Appropriations

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 .- The House agreed to the conference report on the Nicaragua Canal bill this afternoon. No further business was done. The Hon. Charles O'Neill barred the equalderation of the Agricultural Appropriation bill with a measure increasing the pension of the widow of Gen. Emery from $30 to $50 per month. The friends of the appropriation bill retallated by filibustering, and the House finally took a recess.

Gov. Hill visited the Capitol to-day and paid his respects to Mr. Randall in the room of the Committee on Appropriations. He received he Democratic members of Congress at Secretary Whitney's house in the afternoon. Scores of members were absent during the consideration of the conference report on the Nicaragua Canal bill, but the most of them returned in time to vote. Gen. James Longstreet was also a visitor at the Capitol to-day. He was inreduced to many members by Major Martin of Texas, who served in his corps throughout the war. The picturesque figures at prayer this morning were Mr. Richardson of Tennessee and the Hon. James Bright Morgan of Mississippt. They stood in the Speaker's arena, listening to the words of the blind Chaplain with devout interest. After the reading of the minutes Gen. Tom Brown of Indiana presented the credentials of the Hon. Frank B. Posey, the successor of Gen. Hovey. The credentials were read by the Clerk. They were signed by Gen. Hovey himself. The Speaker then invited Mr. l'osey to come forward and take the oath. Gen. Brown accompanied him. Mr. Posey stood in the arena with his right hand uplifted, while the Speaker read the following fend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that you will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that you take this boligation freely, without any mental reservation or evasion, and that you will well and faithfully disharge the duties of the office on which you are about to enter, so help you God.

Mr. Posey lowered his right hand and bowed his head. He then retired to his sent a full-fledged Congressman. Mr. Dunham of Illinois and other friends congratulated him.

Illinois and other friends congratulated him, and later in the alternoon he was shouting "Aye" and "No" as cheerly as the rest.

The Cierk then read the President's message giving the terms of an agreement between the United States and the Creek Nation for the cession of lands in Oklahoma. It was rejerted to the Committee on Indian Affairs, with leave to report at any time. The reference and the leave delighted Mr. Springer, who said that it would be used to the advantage of Oklahoma.

who said that it would be used to the advantage of Oklahoma.

After getting permission for committees to file their reports, Mr. Clardy called up the Nienzagia Canal conference report. By unani mous consent it was agreed that debate should close at 3 P. M. Mr. Townshend said that he would call up the Army Appropriation bill tomorrow morning. Knute Nelson of Mianesota made aspeech against the conference report, it was a reiteration of the argument made by ludge Wilson of Mianesota yesterday. His opposition was based upon the opportunities the report gave for watering the stock of the company.

I'ls fron Kelley spoke in favor of the report.
The building of the canal would develop our

Pacific coast, and open a new market for our coal.

Silver Dollar Bland qualified his assertions encorroing the terms of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty made yesterday. He said that under its terms both Great Britain and the United States could withdraw their protection if unreasonable tolls were charged by the owners of the canal. He was willing to modify his amendment in accordance with this agreement. Judge Chipman of Michigan iavored the bill as it came from the Senate. The amendment offered by Judge Wilson was death to the project.

as it came from the Senate. The amendment offered by Judge Wilson was death to the project.

Mr. Dingley of Maine also favored the report of the committee. He said that if this effort to secure a charter was not successful the canal might be built by a private company under the influence of a foreign Government.

Mr. Buckalew of Pennsylvania could find in the bill no guarantee that the amount of stock and bonds to be issued would not be four times the cost of the work. This might subject the commence of the world to unreasonable and unjust charges. He thought the defect ought to be remedied.

Mr. O'Neill of Missouri said that St. Louis favored the bill. He had no extreme sensitiveness concerning the bondholders. He did not believe that Congress ought to worry itself as to whether the bondholder was going to strike magnificent returns or strike occasionally an Irish dividend in the shape of an assessment. He believed that the people would sustain Congress if it passed the bill.

The great and only William L. Scott made a stirring speech. He suggested that the old story of the cuttlefish, which muddleg the water trying to escape from a supposed enemy, was applicable to the gentlemen opposed to the bill. He replied to Mr. Cobb of Alabama and to the arguments notwanced by Judge Wilson.

He said that he dai not think Congress was called upon to protect the Rothschilds, the librings, and jether lambs in Europea who might be induced to make investments. As in the bill, he had no parsonal investments and his sisters, his cousins, nor his aunts. In relering to the assaults upon gentlemen interested in corporations, he said that the atmosphere of the House seemed to be peculiar. It seemed to some that a Congressman ought is seemed to some that a Congressman ought it seemed to some that a Congressman ought it seemed to some that a Congressman ought is seemed to some that a Congressman ought is seemed to some that a Congressman ought it seemed to some that a Congressman ought is seemed to some the seemed to some the constitution of the Constitution of the Constitution of the Constitution of the Congressman ought is se

Mr. O'Neill of Philadelphia and others made earnest speeches in favor of the bill. Mr. Clardy would un the debate in a five minute talk. At 3 o'clock Speaker Carlisie shouted: "The question is upon agreeing to the report."

Gen Butterworth inquired whether the report must be adopted as a whole. The Speaker rollied that it must. The yeas and mays were then taken.

kraphically written by an eleganst and accomplished Congressman from Michigan:

"The vote was taken in breathless silence, only interrupted by the frequent appeals of the Speaker for order. The Rev. Mr. Anderson of Kansas voted most vociferously against the bill. His clarion tones were chanticleerian in their melody. The Democratic side was very faill. It had just come from Secretary Whitney's house. The subgressed excitement was intense. Kelley and Mills were embracing each other in anticipation of a great victory.

Later-Russell of Connecticut has just voted. The excitement is uncontrollable, and Samt Ox is telling a story. The Speaker wields the gavel with his usual neatness and despatch. He is caim amid the storm, Wilkins's name has just been called. He is absent from his post of duty, being engaged unon the affairs of the Washington Fost. McMillan has just been heard from. The Speaker is using the other end of the gavel. Hatch of Missouri boldiv asks to suspend the reading of the names on the roll call. The excitement is intense. Norwood announces that he was inside of the House when his name was called, and he wants to vote. Clardy pobly asks that gentlemen who did not speak may print their remarks in the Record. His conduct is considered very herole. The pairs are being announced with all the firmness which characterizes that accomplished gentlemen desire to know how they voted. The thair generously informs them and they believe him. The excitement continues. Amid deathless eilence the Speaker Fays: Aves 177, nose, 60. Tromendous amplance. I pon which Chardy calmiy remarks: A splendid victory. Thus ended the greatest legislative fight of modern times. Still later-Dingley and Breckinsidge are hollering about Russ. I don't know who flust is. Will find out and telegraph before you go to press. That minion of a polygiot trust, the feered and the presented in the feered of the speaker servilely permits it. The Speaker persists in using the gavel wrong end to. This must be stopped or the country will go to the Cumean cave. The Speaker is apparently very ungentlemanily, He desires members to sit down when they want to stand up. This looks like an invasion of the rights of freemen."

Here your correspondent returned from lunch and thanked the Michigan Congressman. Gov. Dinglay secured the consideration of a resolution reported from the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheriea, asking the Secretary of the Treasury for the secret instructions issued to the commander of the United States revenue cutter in Behring's Sea last year. It is reported that the commander was ordered not to interfere with British wessess engaged in seal fishing in those waters. The House passed the resolution.

An effort was then made to secure the passage of a bill increasing the pension of the wildow of Gen. Ward B. Burnett to $100 per month. It came up as a privileged matter, the previous question having been ordered some time are. Mr. Hatch of Missouri, who wanted to put his Agricultural Appropriation bill upon the track, raised the question of consideration, and the flouses tood by him.

Charles O'Neil of Philadelphia, under a similar urivilege, called up the bill increasing the pension of the wildow of Gen. Emory from $30 to $50 ter mouth. Mr. O'Neil is by a vote of 105 to $80.

Mr. Chendle of Indiann, who opposes all such pension bills, moved to recommit the bill. The years and nays were secured, and the house favored Mr. O'Neil by a vote of 105 to $80.

Mr. Chendle of Indiann, who opposes all such pension bills, moved to recommit the bill. The years and nays were again secured, and the motion was lost by a vote of 14 to 117.

A fillbustering spirit was developed, Mr. Reckinridge moved to take a recess. Under a special order the House would be forced to with fram his motion. Mr. Randall demanded the years and nays were again secured, and the motion was lost by a vote of 14 to 117.

A fillbustering spirit was developed. Mr. Ran log, he said:

"I never knew the gentleman from Indiana
o oppose a meritorious pension bill before s." It is not the question of a pension," squeaked "It is not the question of a pension," squeaked the Judge. "It's a question of time." This excited much laughter. A sharp collo-quy followed, which was cut short by the an-nouncement of the Speaker protein, that the hour of 5 o'clock haying arrived, the House would take a recess until 75.

Senator Daniel Vigorously Attacks the

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 .- The system of civil service reform, so-called, under which the various departments of the Government are at present managed, received severe punishment in the Senate to-day at the hands of Senator Daniel of Virginia. The subject came up in a rather indirect way in connection with a pendng appropriation bill, and the flery Virginian look occasion to free his mind on a subject that apparently lies near to his heart. He objected to voting any more money to support a trium-virate which sat in Washington, responsible to tobody, dictating who should be employed as servants of the people, and accepting as evidece of their worthiness their ability to answer a few picayune questions in arithmetic and reography. Mr. Daniel did not have a very large audience of Democrats to listen to appeal to the North to Help the Disable the Public : On Nov. 1, 1886, a National Confederate Soldiers' Home was established at Austin.

The Civil Service Commission, he said, was a crystallization of executive power without executive ability, and an institution at once un-American, un-licipabilican, and un-Democratic. The Commissioners were simply three receivers of a bankfurt system, responsible to nobody. They are men, he said, who are working a partisan machine under the guise of reformanchine that allowed them to select men for office without giving the majority of the plain, honest American citizens a chance to be heard. They have it in their power to play with loaded dice and marked cards, but without the fear of discovery.

NATIONAL CONFEDERATE SOLDIERS' HOME.

A STATE OF THE PARTY OF THE PAR

Tex., under the auspices of the John B. Hood Camp Confederate Veterans, and under a charter granted by the State of Texas. An effort was made to obtain State aid, but he Constitution of Texas inhibits State aid to charifable institutions not designated in the Constitution.

The Home property consists of sixteen acres of land in the suburbs of Austin, upon which there is an old frame house of seven rooms and a tent, the house now containing twentysix and the tent eight inmates—their utmost capacity—one being a Union soldier. The thirty-four inmates represent nine States. Since the Home was opened 113 have been admitted; six of those have died, some have been sufficiently restored to health to enable them to earn a living by herding sheen, an occupation peculiarly fitted for partially disabled men: and the present inmates are blind, without on or more limbs, bedridden, aged, and enfeebled or afflicted with incurable diseases, and are incapacitated for any kind of labor and without friends or kindred to help them.

The floors are without rugs or carpets, the furnishing is of the simplest character, and the inmates wear second-hand or enstaway outer ciothing. The property was purchased and the Home has been maintained with vol-intary contributions from the reople of Texas. The Board of Directors has many applications and the frome has been maintained with voluntary contributions from the people of Texas. The Board of Directors has many applications for admission, but cannot consider them, as there is no room for more, and we have not the means to maintain the present occupants many months longer.

We desire to erect a comfortable building that will accompdate from $59 to 400.

We never sought aid outside of Texas until a few months ago, when I went to Boston and made known our necessities to her people, and they sent down about $2.500, and the good women of that city have organized a permanent society to continue the aid, and the old cripples in the Home are now eating brend bought with Boston money.

The only paid person connected with this institution is the cook; all other officers and the Board of Directors serve without pay.

The Board of Directors through the undersigned, a member of the Board appeals to the patriotic and charitable men and women of our common country for contributions in aid of this great charity.

Every dollar donated will be sent down for the use of the Home, and publication of all contributions will be made in New York and Brooklyn papers and also in all the daily papers of Texas, giving names and addresses of contributors and a complete record of the same will be preserved by the Board of Directors.

Contributions may be sent to chancey M. Denew, Grand Central Depot, New York city, who has kindly consented to act as treisurer to receive and corward all donations of money. Address me, care Texas Siffings, 47 John street. New York.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 6.

OTTAWA, Feb. 6 .- There was quite a scene n Parliament to-day when, in reply to a question, the Minister of the Interior said that Henry Robiliard, member of Parliament had acquired the exclusive right from the Dominion Government to cut pine timber on seventyfive square miles of valuable timber land in the Northwest for the nominal figure of $316. which privilege he sold three days later for $50,000. Robiliard is a strong supporter of Sir John Macdonald. The ring of boodle politicians on this side of the line is the strongest faction in the Tory ranks. Sir Adolph Caron, Minister of Militia, and Costigan, Minister of Inland Revenue, will be called upon in a few days to explain how they acquired a large and valuable tract of Government property in the province of Quebec which savors of grab.

The second mortgage bonds of the Western New York and Pennsylvania Railroad have received attention in the market the last few days, because of a decided improvement in the traffic of the road, and more especially an increase in liseosi tonnage. Under the terms of the reorganization of the company the interest upon these bonds is payable until 1898 in cash and serip, on a sliding scale, according to the earnings of the company. After the year mentioned the interest is 3 per cent in cash.

A statement of the operations of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad Company, understood to have been prepared from a report made by the company to the authorities of a Western State, was circulated in the street today. It is for the year ending Dec. 31, 1888, and shows gross earnings of $2,832,974, a decrease of $1,307,751 as compared with the previous year and not $8,689,454, a decrease of $2,850,005. The fixed charges for the first half of the year are known to have been $2,636,578, so that for the year they were probably not far from twice that amount or $5,273,156, and the dividends required $3,444,504, making a deficit for the year of $38,206. This is the way the bears figured on the statement, and considering the experience the Gianger roads had to undergo last year we do not think it a bad showing. all the capital possible out of Judge Brewer's decision giving the Railroad Commissioners of Iowa the right to enforce their rates, subject to an appeal to the State courts, continues to be a perceptible influence in the stock market. All of the channels of publicity that the element bove referred to could command were employed to-day to portray the Granger railroad situation in the darkest possible colors. Recelverships were talked of with an air of assurance which indicated that the predictions of them were inspired by a desire for their fulfilment. These pessimistic railroad managers are finding some very willing dupes in Wall street. The professional element accepts all of the depressing statements that come to the

This was especially true of Chicago, Burlington and Quincy. It would not be surprising if some of the holders of that stock should see fit to part with it, as the management of the company has done nothing to retain the confidence of its shareholders. On the contrary, it seems to have done everything in its power to destroy confidence. Fortunately the annual meeting of the company occurs in about three months, and in the interests of investors generally it is to be hoped that it will be something more than the usual farce of handing over to the present management, at its request, proxies to retain it in power. No matter what may occur in the mean time, or what creditable nets Messrs. Forbes, Perkins, and the other members of their family may perform, the stockholders of the C., B, and Quincy Company do not want to forget the fact that these pharasaical Puritans have forfeited every claim to the respect of honest men. The stockholders should wake up now and keep wide awake until the annual election for directors has taken place. of those stocks were unmistakably heavy.

The heaviest trading to-day was in Oregon Transcontinental, and the activity and advance in that stock was construed as indicating progress toward the consummation of the proposed alliance between the Union Pacific, the Northern Pacific, and the Oregon Railway and Navigation Companies. It is impossible, however, to learn of any such progress. Atchison ranked second in point of activity, and was really the strongest stock on the list, with the possible exception of C. C., C. and Indianapoils, which continues to supply an unusually large proportion of the dealings. Except for some activity in St. Paul, the Granger group held a most subordinate place, and the coal stocks did not cut any ligure of importance. The revived interest in speculation has turned in other directions. The specialities are the favorites, and of these American Cotton Oil Trusts in the Unlisted Department received more attention to-day than any of the regularly listed stocks. The resources of this concern, especially in evading littglous attacks, are innumerable, and it is understood that the force of the litigation against one of the subordinate members of the concern in the State of Louisiana has been entirely broken in a manner that inveraes the solidity of the parent organization. The volume of business was more than one-third larger than yesterday, and in the main it was sufficiently well distributed to encourage the view that the tendency of the market is to broaden. The closing was strong with prices a little under the highest figures.
